

ELIZA MARCUS

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

---

Eliza is an aspiring screenwriter who graduated from New York University in 2020 with a BA in Dramatic Writing, with a focus in film and television. She also studied Social and Cultural Analysis and strives to look at the world through an intersectional feminist lens. She considers the art of storytelling to be one of humanity's most powerful tools and an integral component to the fight for liberation. She is a firm supporter of the idea that marginalized communities must be given a platform to tell their own stories and be in control of the narratives they wish to share with the world. Above all, she thinks that everyone has a story to tell.

Her passion for social justice stems from her mother Abbe's lifelong work as an educator, with an emphasis on immigration, labor rights, and dismantling systemic racism. She has taken part in many of her mother's social action trips and projects since she was a child. In the future she hopes to be able to employ the values she was raised with in her storytelling for the screen in order to inspire, educate, and ultimately connect people.
